Three Rivers Trail - Back Open!

The Three Rivers Trail starts East of Rolfe and goes through Bradgate, Rutland, Humboldt and Dakota City. It is 33 miles long and has 475 acres of preserved habitat along with 28 bridges. Of those 28 bridges, three old railroad bridges are found in the Pocahontas County section of the trail. Those bridges include "The Rolfe Keystone Bridge" built in 1903, "The Pilot Creek Trail Bridge" built in 1924 and the "Bradgate Trail Bridge" built in 1902.

Considered a multi-use recreational trail it is perfect for walking, biking and snowmobiling. The trail was originally a part of the old Chicago and Northwestern railroad. Once it was abandoned the Conservation Boards for Pocahontas, Humboldt and Wright counties came together to purchase their respected sections of land and made the Three Rivers Trail what it is today.

The trail crosses three rivers; the West Fork of the Des Moines River, the East Fork of the Des Moines River and the Boone River which is how it got its name: The Three Rivers Trail.

In June of 2024 historic flooding in Northwest Iowa caused a temporary closure of a section of the trail in Pocahontas County. This flooding caused a major wash out on parts of the trail (as pictured below). The PCCB has been working hard to make the necessary repairs to the trail and we are excited to say the trail is officially open again!

September 2024 - Wash Out

December 2024 - New Surface

Meet Scotty!

Scotty is our Eastern Box Turtle and one of three different species of turtles we currently have in the Nature Center. Eastern Box Turtles are one of the most commonly seen wild turtles in the United States. While they are most often found in the eastern part of the country they can be found in other states as well, including Iowa.

There are a few core characteristics to tell if it is an Eastern Box Turtle, they include: a high-domed, round and hard upper shell, a hooked jaw (some even have a noticeable overbite), and webbed feet. Color and markings on the shell can vary from turtle to turtle.

In the wild you will most likely find them near ponds, fields, meadows or woodlands. They prefer wet environments or places that there is a lot of rain but they also like the warmth of the sun and to “sun” themselves on a nice day.

Eastern Box Turtles are omnivore so they will eat just about anything. Some favorites are berries, insects, roots, flowers and eggs. Scotty’s favorite foods are carrots and lettuce.

In the wild they usually live between 25-35 years but in some instances they can live to closer to 100, especially in captivity. Scotty is 30 years old!
